Winter party games · host's turns

Texture match: Place matching pairs of fabric scraps into a bag. A player feels a pair without looking, sets them down, and checks whether they match. Return mismatches and pass the bag. Finish when every pair has been found, counting the group's successful matches.

Winter Imposter: A dealer selects a familiar winter word and prepares matching slips, then sits out. Clue the secret around the circle and vote simultaneously for another player. A tied lead lets the imposter escape; a caught imposter has a spoken guess. Reveal to end.

Table-slide target: Draw a target on paper and give guests matching flat paper discs. From a shared start line, each guest slides a disc toward the target. Finish after equal turns, measure the nearest disc, and share the win if distances tie.

Shadow shapes: Aim a light at a plain wall and choose a maker. The maker creates a hand shadow while listeners take turns guessing its object or animal. Reveal after a lap, then rotate makers until everyone who wants a turn has made a shape.

Imposter · rules for the dealer

You need 3–12 players, matching slips, a pencil, and a dealer who sits out.

1. Everyone sees the secret word, except the imposter.
2. Take turns saying one word about it, out loud.
3. Vote out the imposter, who can still win by guessing the word.

+1 if you vote for the imposter. +3 to the imposter for getting away or guessing the word.

The dealer sits out. For the number playing, select that many matching cards: an IMPOSTER card and enough secret-word cards for everyone else. Use the extra fill-in sheet above 9 players; leave unused cards aside. Write the same word on every crew card with the same pen, shuffle face down, and announce the category. Each player gives a spoken clue, then everyone points simultaneously at another player. A tied top vote or no votes lets the imposter escape. A caught imposter makes a final spoken guess; this paper variation replaces the phone game's answer choices. Apply the scoring line above, including right-vote points when the imposter guesses correctly. Rotate the dealer after the reveal.
