Imposter · rules for the dealer

You need 3–12 players, matching slips, a pencil, and a dealer who sits out.

1. Everyone sees the secret word, except the imposter.
2. Take turns saying one word about it, out loud.
3. Vote out the imposter, who can still win by guessing the word.

+1 if you vote for the imposter. +3 to the imposter for getting away or guessing the word.

The dealer sits out. For the number playing, select that many matching cards: an IMPOSTER card and enough secret-word cards for everyone else. Use the extra fill-in sheet above 9 players; leave unused cards aside. Write the same word on every crew card with the same pen, shuffle face down, and announce the category. Each player gives a spoken clue, then everyone points simultaneously at another player. A tied top vote or no votes lets the imposter escape. A caught imposter makes a final spoken guess; this paper variation replaces the phone game's answer choices. Apply the scoring line above, including right-vote points when the imposter guesses correctly. Rotate the dealer after the reveal.

New Year’s Eve family games for 2027 · host’s turns

Prediction ballot: Put the printed predictions beside the reader. Read a phrase, then have everyone point together at a willing guest, themselves included. Tied leaders share the pick with at least two votes each; below two votes there is no pick, and nobody scores. End after each guest has read a prompt.

Imposter before the countdown: A dealer prepares matching word slips and an IMPOSTER slip, then sits out. Deal privately, give a spoken clue per player, and point together at another player. A tied top vote lets the imposter escape; a caught imposter gets a spoken guess. The reveal ends the round.

Folded forecast relay: Give each guest a paper strip and a pencil. Write an imaginary future event, fold it out of sight, and pass it along. Alternate sketches and captions, showing only the latest panel. Stop when the strips return and reveal the transformations.
